In September there were around 30,000 homeless on the ground, and in September this figure will drop to 18,000. There are a number of factors at play including the lack of services such in community housing and shelters, increased costs and more money going into the country's social services coffers than has been flowing out of Australia.. The increase comes despite government's promise it would target the issue by tackling it at the earliest stage of crisis with assistance from the private sector and from government bodies, including the Council of Australia, Commonwealth of Australia, Queensland government, and the Australian Government.

This doesn't sound so awesome when you're running a marathon, but you'll be doing quite a few marathon distance miles once you're ready, so it helps to have your body used to it. Try to drink up to three glasses of water during your run. If you've not been doing this yourself, you might need a buddy. Focus on recovery. Runners are incredibly resilient, and this year's major is no different for the most part. You can still take your time while running. And we'd hate to see you finish too soon (okay, a lot of runners will finish too early, but most of them know when their time is up); so getting out there in the field and running is still one heck of a good exercise! Don't forget about the recovery part; the key is to focus on getting enough sleep, and when you have downtime, focus upon a fun, enjoyable run that you think will stay you busy during this marathon, and beyond. The figures also show that the situation in the homeless shelter network is particularly difficult for men and women in their 20s and early 30s, who have little money or income to begin with.. The number of homeless people has increased by 16 per cent since 2013, according to figures released by Ministry of Business, Innovation and Employment at a meeting on Saturday. The new record for the country came despite the government promising to take steps to reduce it. The average number of homeless in this country has risen from 14,831 to 20,800 within three years.. But for these young people their numbers, particularly those who have been through the system and have had mental health issues, are growing. The ministry said men's numbers are expected to increase from around 27,000 in 2013-14 to over 38,000 this year. Women's numbers are expected to continue to grow, with the ministry predicting more than double the expected 2013-14 numbers for women. They are forecast to continue to make up 20 per cent of total emergency support and help (formerly under the National Emergency Service). The ministry also projects the number of homeless men will triple from 14,000 last year to 40,000 this year.. A few tips for staying in shape for a major tournament Get good sleep with good sleep.
